Paying for Care

- ✓ You would like to stay in your own home for as long as possible
- ✓ You are becoming concerned about your increasing frailty
- ✓ You need residential care but are worried that, if care bills are high, your savings may run out
- ✓ You don't want to be a burden on your family
- ✓ You want to leave your children and grandchildren some inheritance
- ✓ You are considering a care home for your mother of father
- ✓ You want your mother of father to stay in their chosen care home without any financial worries
- ✓ You want your parents to have peace of mind that they will be able to meet any rising care-fee costs
- ✓ You want to preserve your (or your parents) value of your/their savings

The need for Long Term Care often arises quickly and unexpectedly. The NHS, Social Services and care homes play a vital role in your care, but none of them actually give specific advice on how to pay for Long Term Care (should you require it). So if you are self-funding and you need somewhere to turn for impartial and personal advice please ask: futurecareassured.

Solutions

It can be a very traumatic experience to suddenly find yourself needing long term care, and under these circumstances the last thing you need are any extra worries such as: "How will I pay for my care?"

Many elderly people do not meet the required criteria for financial State Assistance. Because of this people who are self-funding need guidance on a number of options. For example, whether to:

1. Use their own savings (to meet care-fees)
2. Release equity from their home (to meet care-fees)
3. To 'sell up' to create income to pay for care-fees

And, most importantly; they will need expert advice as to how much money is required to prevent any funds from being prematurely depleted.

Expert advice

We have a team of specialists who are experienced in dealing with Care-fees Planning. All are qualified, registered Independent Financial Advisers, authorised and regulated by The Financial Services Authority. Each member of staff has many years experience, not only in investment and retirement planning, but also in clarifying the complicated and sometimes confusing intricacies that are involved in Long-term Care planning fees.

Surprisingly very few financial advisers, nationally, are qualified to provide advice specifically related to Long Term Care. However, all our advisers at futurecareassured are required to hold the specialist CF8 Long Term Care Insurance qualification (from the Chartered Insurance Institute). Our specialist advisers are also legally obliged to undertake regular Continuous Professional Development courses to ensure that their knowledge is fully up to date and relevant to your needs.

POWER OF ATTORNEY

We strongly recommend that you have a suitable Power Of Attorney in place to ensure that your wishes are met in the case of a physical or mental disability arising. This is easily arranged and we can put you in touch with trusted professionals who will be able to arrange this for you.
